Chapter 54 COLON ANASTOMOSIS, STAPLED

ALTERNATIVE METHOD— TRIANGULATION

An alternative method of open anastomosis for large intestine involves the method of triangulation using three separate staple lines. It is particularly useful in colocolostomy anastomoses as in left-sided colectomies since it does not require rotation of the mesentery. It can also be used to close a loop colostomy as an alternative to the sutured technique in Chapter 53.

The Atlas covers gastrointestinal, hepatobiliary, pancreatic, vascular, gynecological and other procedures, including hernia repair, vascular access, breast procedures, Sentinel lymph node biopsy, thyroidectomy and many more.
